Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Sunday 14 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
A wet and windy outlook, but much milder than recently.

Today:
A wet start outbreaks of rain in the west which soon move east to cover the whole region. Further rain arrives in the afternoon, heavier and more persistent. Becoming milder, but windy, with a risk of gales at the coast. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:
Rainfall continues into the night, moving eastwards, but taking all night to clear eastern areas and a few fog patches to form. Remaining breezy, but much milder than recent nights. Minimum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Monday:
A murky start, then a mostly dry day with plenty of sunny spells. Some outbreaks of rain arrive later during the evening. Feeling mild, despite a brisk breeze. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Cloudy on Tuesday, with scattered showers. Sunny initially on Wednesday, before showers in the afternoon and further rain overnight into Thursday morning. Sunshine and showers returning on Thursday. Windy throughout.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.